PIWI International

(Sec.1) Upon joining, PIWI International ("Society") registers the new members' family/given name, date of birth, telephone number(s), email address, physical address and bank details. This data will be stored on the Executive Committee's computer systems and on the "Weblink" member administration software program.

In this case, personal data will be protected from third-party access through technical and organisational measures. The Society processes or uses other information on (non-)members only if this is individually required to promote the Society's purpose and if there is no reason to believe that data subjects have an interest worthy of protection contrary to processing or usage.

(Sec.2) The Executive Committee informs members about special Society occasions, particularly travels and events, through billposting, letters, media publications and/or the Society's website. In this context, personal member data may be published to the extent required for reasonable presentation. This also applies to photos and videos made during Society activities. Information may be delivered to members also by email.

The Executive Committee hereby confirms that they have taken sufficient technical measures to ensure privacy. Nonetheless, comprehensive data protection when publishing personal member data on the internet cannot be guaranteed. Therefore, Society members acknowledge the risks relating to possible personal rights violations and they are aware that personal data can also be accessed in countries with lower data protection levels compared to those of the Federal Republic of Germany; personal data confidentiality, integrity, authenticity and availability is not guaranteed.
The Society member voluntarily decides to publish his/her data on the internet. Members (and/or their representatives) may, at any time, (generally or individually) object to publication of their data by referring to the President, in which case the members' data will not longer be published.

(Sec. 3) Only Executive Committee members and, if need be in individual cases, other members, having certain managing functions depending on the occasion, requiring access to member data will be given a digital or printed list of members showing required member data. Regular handling of member data is determined in a record of processing activities. The President is the data controller.

Based on the German Federal Data Protection Act, each member has a right receive information on his/her personal data, the recipients in the case of data transfers and the purpose of storage and he/she has the rights to correction, erasure and data blockage. The Society may process or use (such as for advertising purposes) the data in other ways exceeding its tasks and purposes according to the Articles only if they must do so for legal reasons or if members consented to this. The sale of the data shall be prohibited.

(Sec. 4) Upon withdrawal, member data under sec. 1 will be deleted from the list of members. Personal data of withdrawing members relating to payment administration will be stored by the Treasurer pursuant to tax law provisions for up to ten years from withdrawal confirmation in writing.

Alexander Morandell President Dated: 01/12/2020

I read and understood the "Personal Data Handling Leaflet". I hereby agree to my data provided on the membership application form to be used pursuant to the Society's Articles and this data protection leaflet.
